DESCRIPTION

This volume brings together leading scholars in the geography and history of twentieth-century Britain to illustrate the contribution that geographical thinking can make to understanding modern Britain.

• The first collection to explore the contribution that geographical thinking can make to our understanding of modern Britain.

• Contains thirteen essays by leading scholars in the geography and history of twentieth-century Britain.

• Focuses on how and why geographies of Britain have formed and changed over the past century.

• Combines economic, political, social and cultural geographies.

• Demonstrates the vitality of work in this field and its relevance to everyday life.

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

David Gilbert is Senior Lecturer in Geography at Royal Holloway College, University of London.
David Matless is Reader in Cultural Geography at the University of Nottingham. Brian Short is Professor of Historical Geography at the University of Sussex.

FEATURES

- The first collection to explore the contribution that geographical thinking can make to our understanding of modern Britain.
- Contains thirteen essays by leading scholars in the geography and history of twentieth-century Britain.
- Focuses on how and why geographies of Britain have formed and changed over the past century.
- Combines economic, political, social and cultural geographies.
- Demonstrates the vitality of work in this field and its relevance to everyday life.

SERIES

RGS-IBG Book Series

For additional product details, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-gb