Stoma Care is a comprehensive and authoritative guide for all nurses and health care professionals with an interest in bowel conditions that may lead to stoma formation.

It explores the anatomy and physiology of the urinary and gastrointestinal system, and looks at topics including familial adenomatous polyposis, continence issues, nutrition, and conditions leading to stoma formation, complications, fistulae and intestinal failure. It also discusses the role of the nurse in surgery and in pre-and post-operative care.

About the Author

Jennie Burch is a Clinical Nurse Specialist at St Mark's Hospital, Harrow, UK.

Features

- Supported by specialist knowledge on the disease and conditions
- Provides an in-depth exploration of the formation of a stoma
• discusses the role of the nurse in surgery and in pre-and post-operative care

For additional product details, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us