DESCRIPTION

This original study explores the difference that space and spatiality make to the understanding of power.

- Explores the difference that space and spatiality makes to an understanding of power.
- Moves forward the incorporation of ideas of space into social theory.
- Presents a new understanding of the exercise, uses and manifestations of cultural, economic and political power in the second half of the twentieth century.
- Illustrated with cases and examples.
ABOUT THE AUTHOR

John Allen is Professor of Economic Geography at the Open University. His recent publications include Rethinking the Region: Spaces of Neoliberalism (1998, with Doreen Massey and Allan Cochrane) and Human Geography Today (1999, with Doreen Massey and Phil Sarre).

FEATURES

• Explores the difference that space and spatiality makes to an understanding of power.

• Moves forward the incorporation of ideas of space into social theory.

• Presents a new understanding of the exercise, uses and manifestations of cultural, economic and political power in the second half of the twentieth century.

• Illustrated with cases and examples.

SERIES

RGS-IBG Book Series

For additional product details, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us