DESCRIPTION

Archaeologies of the Middle East provides an innovative introduction to the archaeology of this fascinating region and a window on both its past and present.

- Written by some of the top archaeologists of the Middle East: scholars from diverse backgrounds with a wide range of interests and intellectual approaches
- Coverage spans 100,000 years: from the Paleolithic to Hellenistic times
- Explores the connections between modern-day politics and the social context of archaeological practice and various underutilized approaches to archaeological interpretation
- Designed for student use

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Susan Pollock is Professor of Anthropology at Binghamton University, with a specialty in archaeology of the Middle East. She has conducted fieldwork in Iran, Turkey, and Iraq. Her research contributes to studies of political economy, ideology and representation, and archaeology in the media.
Reinhard Bernbeck is Associate Professor of Anthropology at Binghamton University. His specialty is the archaeology of the ancient Near East. He has directed and participated in field projects in Syria, Jordan, Turkey, and Iran. He is interested in historiography and theories of praxis and also remains committed to a historical materialist view of the past.

FEATURES

• Written by some of the top archaeologists of the Middle East: scholars from diverse backgrounds with a wide range of interests and intellectual approaches
• Coverage spans 100,000 years: from the Paleolithic to Hellenistic times
• Explores the connections between modern-day politics and the social context of archaeological practice and various underutilized approaches to archaeological interpretation
• Designed for student use
• Focuses on key themes and time periods rather than offering a static overview of the history of this fascinating region

SERIES

Wiley Blackwell Studies in Global Archaeology

To purchase this product, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us/9780631230014