The World Economy: Global Trade Policy 2006
David Greenaway (Editor)

DESCRIPTION

The thirteenth volume in this annual series analyses trade structure, Non-agricultural Market Access (NAMA) and their effect on World Trade Organization negotiations.

- Top economists provide a concise and accessible evaluation of major developments in trade and trade policy
- Examines key issues pertinent to the multinational trading system, as well as regional trade arrangements and policy developments at the national level
- Considers the economic implications around the world from developing countries through to European communities
- Questions why the WTO is deadlocked and what can be done about it and includes evaluations of WTO Trade Policy Reviews of the European Union, Korea and Norway
ABOUT THE AUTHOR

David Greenaway is Professor of Economics and Director of the Leverhulme Centre for Research on Globalization and Economic Policy at The University of Nottingham.

FEATURES

- Top economists provide a concise and accessible evaluation of major developments in trade and trade policy
- Examines key issues pertinent to the multinational trading system, as well as regional trade arrangements and policy developments at the national level
- Provides up-to-date assessments of trade structure, Non-agricultural Market Access (NAMA) and their effect on World Trade Organization negotiations
- Considers the economic implications around the world from developing countries through to European communities
- Questions why the WTO is deadlocked and what can be done about it and includes evaluations of WTO Trade Policy Reviews of the European Union, Korea and Norway

SERIES

World Economy Special Issues

For additional product details, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us