DESCRIPTION

A Companion to Urban Economics provides a state-of-the-art overview of this field, communicating its intellectual richness through a diverse portfolio of authors and topics.

- Unique in both its rigor and international treatment
- An ideal supplementary textbook in upper-level undergraduate urban economics courses, or in master's level and professional courses, providing students with the necessary foundation to tackle more advanced topics in urban economics
- Contains contributions from the world's leading urban economists

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Richard J. Arnott is Professor of Economics at Boston College, Massachusetts. His recent research focuses on the economics of urban transportation and he is author of Alleviating Urban Traffic Congestion (with Tilmann Rave and Ronnie Schôb, 2005). He has extensive editorial experience, including serving as an editor for the journals Regional Science and Urban Economics and Journal

FEATURES

• Unique in both its rigor and international treatment

• Provides a state-of-the-art overview of this dynamic, continually evolving subject

• An ideal supplementary textbook in upper-level undergraduate urban economics courses, or in master's level and professional courses, providing students with the necessary foundation to tackle more advanced topics in urban economics

• Contains contributions from the world's leading urban economists

SERIES

Blackwell Companions to Contemporary Economics

To purchase this product, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us/9781405179683