Human Rights: An Anthropological Reader

Mark Goodale

Paperback
978-1-405-18334-5
October 2008
$54.00

Hardcover
978-1-405-18335-2
October 2008
$126.75

DESCRIPTION

This innovative reader brings together key works that demonstrate the important and unique contributions anthropologists have made to the understanding and practice of human rights over the last 60 years.

• Draws on a range of intellectual and methodological approaches to reveal both the ambiguities and potential of the postwar human rights project

• Brings together essays by both contemporary luminaries and seminal figures to provide a rich introduction to the subject

• Supplemented with selected international human rights documents and links to websites on human rights

ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Mark Goodale is Assistant Professor of Conflict Analysis and Anthropology at George Mason University and the Series Editor of Stanford Studies in Human Rights. He is the author of Surrendering to Utopia: An Anthropology of Human Rights (Stanford UP, 2009) and Dilemmas of Modernity: Bolivian Encounters with Law and Liberalism (Stanford UP, 2008) and coeditor (with Sally Engle Merry) of The Practice of Human Rights: Tracking Law Between the Global and the Local (Cambridge UP, 2007).
FEATURES

• Comprises key works that demonstrate the important contributions anthropologists have made to the understanding and practice of human rights over the last 60 years
• Draws on a range of intellectual and methodological approaches to reveal both the ambiguities and potential of the postwar human rights project
• Brings together essays by both contemporary luminaries and seminal figures to provide a rich introduction to the subject
• Supplemented with selected international human rights documents and links to websites on human rights

SERIES

Wiley Blackwell Readers in Anthropology

To purchase this product, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us/9781405183352