Description

This expansive Companion offers a set of fresh perspectives on the wealth of texts produced in and around what is now the United States.

* Highlights the diverse voices that constitute American literature, embracing oral traditions, slave narratives, regional writing, literature of the environment, and more

* Demonstrates that American literature was multicultural before Europeans arrived on the continent, and even more so thereafter

* Offers three distinct paradigms for thinking about American literature, focusing on: genealogies of American literary study; writers and issues; and contemporary theories and practices

* Enables students and researchers to generate richer, more varied and more comprehensive readings of American literature
ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Paul Lauter is Allan K. and Gwendolyn Miles Smith Professor of Literature at Trinity College in Hartford, Connecticut. He has served as President of the American Studies Association (of the United States), and he is General Editor of the groundbreaking Heath Anthology of American Literature, now in its sixth edition.

FEATURES

• An expansive Companion, offering a set of fresh perspectives on the wealth of texts produced in and around what is now the United States.

• Highlights the diverse voices that constitute American literature, embracing oral traditions, slave narratives, regional writing, literature of the environment, and more.

• Demonstrates that American literature was multicultural before Europeans arrived on the continent, and even more so thereafter.

• Offers three distinct paradigms for thinking about American literature, focusing on: genealogies of American literary study; writers and issues; and contemporary theories and practices.

• Enables students and researchers to generate richer, more varied and more comprehensive readings of American literature.

SERIES

Blackwell Companions to Literature and Culture

For additional product details, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us