The first two editions of Models of Democracy have proven immensely popular among students and specialists worldwide. In a succinct and far-reaching analysis, David Held provides an introduction to central accounts of democracy from classical Greece to the present and a critical discussion of what democracy should mean today.

This new edition has been extensively revised and updated to take account of significant transformations in world politics, and a new chapter has been added on deliberative democracy which focuses not only on how citizen participation can be increased in politics, but also on how that participation can become more informed.

Like its predecessor, the third edition of Models of Democracy combines lucid exposition and clarity of expression with careful scholarship and originality, making it highly attractive to students and experts in the field. The third edition will prove essential reading for all those interested in politics, political theory and political philosophy.

A companion website to Models of Democracy provides lecturer and student resources; including a study guide, an interview with the author and links to develop the reader's understanding of the topics covered.
ABOUT THE AUTHOR

David Held is Graham Wallas Professor of Political Science at the London School of Economics and Political Science.

RELATED RESOURCES

Student

View Student Companion Site

FEATURES

• Third edition of this hugely successful textbook which has proven immensely popular among students and specialists worldwide.

• Provides a comprehensive and accessible introduction to central accounts of democracy from classical Greece to the present and a critical discussion of what democracy should mean today.

• Extensively revised and updated to take account of significant transformations in world politics.

• Includes a new chapter on deliberative democracy, which focuses not only on how citizen participation can be increased in politics, but also on how that participation can become more informed.

For additional product details, please visit https://www.wiley.com/en-us