CALL FOR PAPERS

The Review of Behavioral Finance, a new journal published by Wiley-Blackwell welcomes submissions relating to any area of behavioral finance, including, but not limited to, the following:

- Investor behavior and asset prices
- Overreaction and under-reaction in financial markets
- Herding behavior and bubbles in financial markets
- Derivative market trading
- Corporate financial decisions
- Anomalies in financial markets
- Experimental approaches to financial decision making
- Risk attitudes and investment decisions

REVIEW RESPONSE COMMITMENT

The journal aims to provide to authors a referee’s report and the editors’ decision within 100 days of receipt of a complete submission. If for any reason the journal does not meet this commitment, the submission fee will be refunded.

AIMS AND SCOPE

The Review of Behavioral Finance provides an outlet for original peer reviewed scholarly research debating the increasingly important area of behavioral finance. The Review welcomes high quality theoretical, empirical or experimental articles in any area relating to behavioral finance for consideration for publication. In addition to welcoming articles which primarily adopt a standard finance based approach, the Review also welcomes interdisciplinary research which contributes to improved understanding of the role of behavioral influences on financial markets and financial decision making within firms.

INCLUDED IN THE FIRST ISSUE:

- Book/Market Fluctuations, Trading Activity, and the Cross-Section of Expected Stock Returns
  - Amber Anand and Avanidhar Subrahmanyam

- Asymmetric Asset Price Reaction to News and Arbitrage Risk
  - John Doukas and Meng Li

- Does Risk Aversion Vary with Decision-frame? An Empirical Test using Recent Game Show Data
  - Robert Brooks, Robert Faff, Daniel Mulino and Richard Scheelings

www.interscience.wiley.com/journal/rbf
GUIDELINES FOR MANUSCRIPT SUBMISSION:

Unsolicited manuscripts should be submitted through Manuscript Central (http://mc.manuscriptcentral.com/rbf) together with a submission fee of $275. Your manuscript will be processed on receipt of full payment.

Further details can be found at www.interscience.wiley.com/journal/rbf